One script writes a title before the document's own, another an author after it. The PDF's title is "The document's title" and its author "The document's author", not "From the script".

The page shows only this text.