Spring catalogue

Featured

Each card is a link around three divs. Standard: every line of a card is bold and blue, the title larger and underlined, the price red, and each line links to its product. Legacy: the divs start from the page's style, so nothing is bold or blue and nothing links, and the rules for the title and the price go through the link, an inline element, so they are dropped and every line is plain.

Desk lamp

Brushed steel, warm light, three brightness settings.

$49

Reading chair

Oak frame with a wool cushion.

$320

Customer question

A rich-text answer: a purple, 10pt serif span around two paragraphs, and a sentence after them. Standard: all three are purple 10pt serif. Legacy: the paragraphs and the sentence after them are in the page's black sans-serif.

Yes, the lamp takes any E27 bulb up to 60W.

We ship it with a warm LED bulb fitted.

Thanks for asking.

Specifications

Each cell wraps two divs in strong. Standard: the divs are bold and dark blue, and "Measured in store" after the strong is plain. Legacy: the divs are bold and dark blue too, but so is "Measured in store", since the end of the strong restores nothing.

Desk lamp 45 cm, 1.2 kg Measured in store	Reading chair 92 cm, 14 kg Measured in store

From our reviewers

A quotation inside em. Standard: the quotation and "Rated five stars" after it are italic. Legacy: only "Our reviewer wrote" is italic.

Our reviewer wrote:

> The chair is the most comfortable I have tested this year.

Rated five stars.