A gradient position ending in 0, cssMode legacy radial-gradient() with at

at 10px 0: red at the top edge, 10px in from the left, fading to blue.

at left 0: red in the top left corner.

at 100% 0: red in the top right corner.

at 0 100%: red in the bottom left corner.

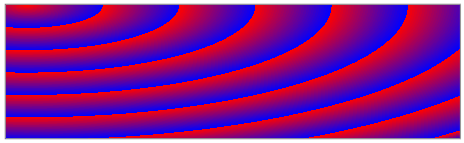
at 0 50%: red halfway down the left edge.

ellipse farthest-corner at 0 0: red in the top left corner.

circle at 75% 0: red at the top edge, three quarters across, in round rings.

circle at 10px 0: red at the top edge, 10px in from the left, in round rings.

repeating, at 10px 0: rings of red to blue every 10 mm, centred on the top edge 10px in from the left.



Prefixed gradients

-moz- radial 10px 0: red at the top edge, 10px in from the left.

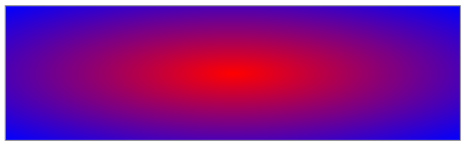
-webkit- radial 0 100%: red in the bottom left corner.

-moz- linear 10px 0: from red at the top left to blue at the bottom right, the bands leaning, not upright.

-webkit- linear 0 100%: from red at the bottom left to blue at the top right, the bands leaning.

-moz- linear left 0: left is the side it ends at, so from red at the top right to blue at the bottom left.

A bare 0

linear: still the angle, which points right in legacy mode: red at the left, blue at the right.


radial: still centred, a red centre fading to blue.