vertical-align on inline text, and text-indent

vertical-align keywords on 7pt red text in a 20pt line baseline: the red text sits on the line's baseline, as the black text does.

Hxg baseline Hxg

middle: the middle of the red text is level with the middle of the black lowercase x.

Hxg middle Hxg

text-top: the top of the red text's line is level with the top of the black font's box, just above the H.

Hxg text-top Hxg

text-bottom: the bottom of the red text's line is level with the bottom of the black font's box, just below the g.

Hxg text-bottom Hxg

top: the red text is at the top of the blue line.

Hxg top Hxg

bottom: the red text is at the bottom of the blue line.

Hxg bottom Hxg

top beside a 20mm image: the red text is at the top of the image, and the black text on the baseline at its foot.

Hxg  top Hxg

middle on a span with a yellow background and an underline: the background and the underline move up with the red text.

Hxg middle Hxg

middle on a span holding a 4mm image: the image moves up with the red text, its foot on the red text's baseline.

Hxg middle Hxg

text-indent

10mm: only the first line is indented.

The first line of this paragraph is indented and the lines after it are not.

10mm hanging: every line but the first is indented.

The first line of this paragraph is not indented and the lines after it are.

-10mm hanging, with 10mm of padding: the first line starts at the padding's inner edge and the lines after it 10mm further left, in the padding.

The first line of this paragraph is not moved and the lines after it are moved left.

10mm each-line: the first line, and the first line after the break, are indented; the lines they wrap onto are not.

The first line is indented and the next is not.
The line after the break is indented again.

20mm on a table cell: the cell's first line is indented.

The first line of this cell is indented and the lines after it are not.

20mm on a right-to-left table cell: the cell's first line is indented from the right.

The first line of this cell is indented and the .lines after it are not