Descendant rules naming a language

:lang()

div.pseudo :lang(fr): the French paragraph is green and bold, the English one black.

Un paragraphe en français

A paragraph in English

[lang]

div.attribute [lang=de]: the German paragraph is blue and italic, the English one black.

Ein Absatz auf Deutsch

A paragraph in English

A tag with :lang()

div.tagged p:lang(es): the Spanish paragraph has a yellow background, the English one none.

Un párrafo en español

A paragraph in English

Inline content

div.inline :lang(fr): only the French words are green and bold.

An English sentence with quelques mots en français in it.

Table cells

table.cells :lang(fr) and table.cells td:lang(de): the French cell has a blue background, the German cell is blue and bold, the English cell is plain.

Français	Deutsch	English

table.content td :lang(fr): the French words in the cell are green and bold.

English with des mots en français

Regional languages

fr-CA falls back to :lang(fr) and is green and bold. pt-BR is named in full and is blue and italic, not red.

Un paragraphe en français canadien

Um parágrafo em português do Brasil

Order

div.order p:lang(fr) is applied after div.order .note: the paragraph is green and bold, not red.

Un paragraphe en français