Shaped values trimmed to fit

Each field is 20pt and too narrow for its value even at the smallest size it is drawn at, 10pt, so the value loses what does not fit from its end. What it keeps is the longest start that fits once shaped, and it is never cut inside a cluster: the Arabic keeps 8 characters though its first 7 are wider, and the Devanagari and Telugu are cut before a conjunct rather than at its virama. Beside each field is the start it should show, written on the page in the same font.
