A list item with no list around it

The lists come first, so what a marker is supposed to look like is on the page before the bare items below are asked to draw one of their own.

Items inside the list they belong to

- Inside a ul

1. Inside an ol

- Inside a ul asking for a square

The same items with nothing around them

A bare item was never given a list style, a list image or a position, and it has to fall back on what a first level unordered list would have set. Nothing here resets the ordered counter either, which is why the decimal one carries on from the list above.

- Bare item, falling back on the marker a ul would have given it

2. Bare item asking for a decimal marker

- Bare item asking for a square marker

Bare item turning its marker off

Several in a row

Nothing opens or closes a list between these, so each one falls back on its own.
